Woven solutions

Project information

Aleksandra Gaca designs innovative woven textiles. She works with brands, architects, manufacturers and institutions to create textile solutions, products and installations that translate her clients' identities, needs and interests into woven form. Her work appears in interiors, architecture, fashion and art exhibitions. It unites strong aesthetic qualities with high functional performance in acoustics and insulation. At the outset of her 20-year career, she pioneered 3D woven textiles, becoming an expert in their design, manufacture and use. Her fabrics combine experimental weaving techniques with her own sensuous approach to materials, colour and pattern.

At Ventura New York, Aleksandra Gaca presents her latest 3D woven textiles. Gaca's first exhibition in the USA, showcases new addition to her iconic sound absorbent fabrics - Architextiles and her most recent cushion collection – BLOKO. Architextiles in acoustic fabric Rhombus features geometric structures in new colour combinations to provide a visual, tactile and auditory experience. BLOKO cushions excite the senses with their luxuriously tactile surfaces and a surprising gradient colour effect.

“Since we are constantly exposed to an ever-changing stream of digital information today, textiles are more important than ever for the feeling of safety and comfort they provide,” says Aleksandra Gaca. “With their regular structure and harmonious weaves and colours, as well as their sensory qualities – their ability to soften sound, their reassuring warm touch and their aesthetically balanced appearance – my textiles provide a much-needed sense of rest.”
